FEEDING REFUGEES ON FRENCH TRAIN

American Red Cross in Paris
Quickly Answers Emergency Call.

HOMELESS LAUGH AND JOKE

No Bitterness, No Complaint, No Despair Among People, Many of Whom Were Refugees for Second and Third Time.

Paris.—A thousand refugees from the east of Amiens will pass through Acheres at seven o'clock tonight. They will not have had any supper, some of them may not have had any lunch. There is no food there and no facilities for feeding them. Can you help us?

That was the telephone message from the French minister of the interior, which came to the American Red Cross at noon one day during the German drive on Amiens, and the answer was "Yes. Emergency measures are no surprise to us these days." The food was ordered out of the warehouses and a score of volunteers rounded up.

They started at six o'clock the same evening. One five-ton truck loaded with flanned beef and condensed milk, apples, chocolate and heaps of huge loaves of war bread; two carloads of midnight volunteers, stenographers, bureau chiefs, drivers and canteen workers set out on their way to bring help to the homeless refugees.

They rolled out through the residential district of Paris, out past the fortifications, bumped through grimy factory suburbs and on into the open country where the level plains stretched off into infinite distance, broken only by interminable rows of slim poplars.

Then suddenly without warning, there emerged from the forest into a black smudge of railway tracks, cinders, flat-cars, passenger cars, sheds, platforms, warehouses, cranes—Acheres. It was the junction point, where the thousands of refugees were to stop for half an hour.

Saluted With One Arm.
Lieutenant M. met us there, saluted stiffly with his one arm, and did the honors of the station. A group of weary, muddy "permissionnaires," most of them over forty, just back from the Champagne front, were routed out.

CAMOUFLAGED BIG GUN

Mounted on a specially constructed railway carriage this big French 400 millimeter gun is ready to lunge away at the German forces. It is exceedingly well camouflaged to prevent detection by Boche aerial observers. Guns this size did good work by mowing down at long range the close-packed masses of Germans as they advanced in the latest offensive.

SOLDIER SAVES KING

Serbian Lieutenant Tells Stirring Story of War.

Out of Whole Army He Was Selected to Command Bodyguard of Monarch.

Bangor, Me.—Among soldiers recently from European battlefields who passed through here was the officer who was selected to command the guard detailed to escort King Peter of Serbia to a place of safety when the Austrian bombardment made it necessary for the monarch to quit the royal palace in Belgrade. This officer is Lieut. Pavle Yovanovitch, a man of stately figure and courtly manner, who wears upon his tunic the insignia of the Order of the White Eagle, which is equivalent to the British Distinguished Service Order, and Order of the White Star, which corresponds to some were grizzled old farmers. Others were city folk, obviously not used to third class travel. There were families of three generations huddled together on their way—somewhere. Some clutched precious umbrellas, some carried bird cages, some alarm clocks. Some of them had dogs, some had cats. But the patios of it all was not on the surface. Some of them quietly told that they were refugees for the second and third time and laughed and joked when they woke up. There was no bitterness, no complaint, no despair.

Bread Pile Fell Away.
The huge pile of bread fell away, the big boxes were emptied, the tins were all hauled into the trains. The engine shrieked a shrill French whistle and the train pulled away. The rescuers were in the silence of the night. One of many thousands of refugees had had one dreary midnight meal from home—one lonely meal out of hundreds, perhaps thousands, before them.

A train load of wounded from the front joggled in ten minutes later. The men nurses carried water through the carriages swiftly and silently. Then the Americans handed out the remnants of their stores of eggs and the train slipped away.

Itself was a component part, been rejected by the government, but he also had been informed on good authority all the other Alsatian factories to be liquidated would be sold to "old-German" concerns beyond the Rhine.

INDIGNATION IS WIDESPREAD

Even Officials Responsible to Kaiser's Government Forced by Public to Give Voice to Emphatic Protests.

Amsterdam.—German carpetbaggers are overrunning Alsace to grab all property confiscated by the state under various pretexts. Indignation among the people is widespread, and even officials responsible to the Kaiser's government are forced by public opinion to give voice to emphatic protests.

Alsace is a great industrial center and one of its principal industries is the manufacture of textiles. Most of the textile factories in Alsace were taken over by the state as a war measure. As some of the stockholders were Frenchmen, the mills, it was alleged, were partly enemy alien property. So the state took charge of the mills and prepared to liquidate them. This liquidation was carried out recently.

Alsatian business men and capitalists had formed a corporation to buy the mills in an effort to keep them in Alsatian hands. Even city administrations, such as the municipality of Mulhausen, where a number of factories are situated, bought stock in this corporation. The name of the corporation is the United Alsatian Textile Factories.

Forbidden by Berlin.

But it was decided in Berlin that the Alsatians should not be allowed to buy what was practically their own. Another concern, called the Bleichroeder group, was more successful. Their bid for the property was accepted by the government, while the Alsatian offer was rejected.

However, Baron Bleichroeder's heirs are still barons and their influence in the highest circles is still formidable. It seems they had little trouble in obtaining the Alsatian properties at favorable terms—favorable to themselves, for to them state supervision means supervision by friends.

GAS MASK SQUAD FINDS LEAK IN AMMONIA PIPE

Cincinnati.—The first run made by the "gas mask squad" of the local fire department was in response to an explosion in an ice plant. The firemen used their gas masks in locating a leak in an ammonia pipe. Not only had the fumes filled the plant, making it impossible for anyone to stay in the building without a gas mask, but in front of a drug store across the street had to get out into the open air.

The turning of ostrich skins is one of the new South African industries.

Girls to Do Farm Work.

Los Angeles, Cal.—An army of 1,933 high school girls of this city have volunteered to harvest crops and will be ready for call by the Woman's Land Army of America after June 21, when the local schools close. By that time the high school farmettes expect to have at least 3,000 in their ranks.

Could Not Speak Khaki.

Greensburg, Pa.—"Khaki" proved too much for the crack spellers in Southland. Forty-nine of fifty words were spelled correctly by the whole class, but everyone misspelled the name of the doughboy's uniform.

THE MAKING OF A FAMOUS MEDICINE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Is Prepared For Woman's Use.

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attend the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 350,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually and all have been gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs.

Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterile bottles.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which we are continually publishing attest to its virtue.

Names of Days.

The Roman names of the days have undergone little more than a translation in the Saxon and consequently English names. Thus, the first day of the week is Sonnan-day with the Saxons, Dies Solis with the Romans. Monday is Monan-day with the Saxons, Dies Lunae with the Romans. Tuesday is, among the Saxons, Tues-day; that is, Tunes's day—from Tunes, a mythical person, supposed to have been the first warrior-leader of the Teutonic nations; among the Romans it was Dies Martis, the day of Mars, their god of war. The fourth day of the week was, among the Saxons, Woden's-day, the day of Woden, or Odin, another mythical being of high warlike reputation among the northern nations, and the nearest in character to the Roman god of war.

Nothing Doing.

Don't twist your tongue to say pretzel in Indianapolis dairy lunchrooms as the girls working at the counters have put a ban on the word. Patrons of a dairy lunch in East Washington street, who have been accustomed to ordering coffee and a "pretzel," are being admonished by the counter "men" to say tea ring. "You're an American, aren't you?" the girls say. "You have seen on the movie screens what the Germans are and what they have been doing, haven't you? Then, don't say pretzel, because it's German, and no German goes in here."—Indianapolis News.

The Breach Mender

By ALICE KILLIAN

Copyright, 1912, Western Newspaper Union.

Bobbie Grant, road commissioner of Platte township—several years before he made the race for the Nebraska legislature—was out one July morning before sunrise, putting half a dozen new planks in the flooring of Long bridge, as he whistled and hummed, thinking what a glorious, comfortable beginning was allotted a most comfortable hot day, and wondering how he could manage to take a solid fusion delegation to the state convention, he caught the sound of hoof-beats on a distant span of the bridge. The commissioner paused, hammer up.

"Who in Sam Hill," says he, "can it be, galloping over the bridge at sunup like a duke in a piece of poetry?" "Walk your horses over the bridge," said the commissioner with a fine show of offended authority, to a twenty-man mob was driving. Then, pricking up his ears again, "Why, damn it, it's a pair." He then stood up and craned his neck for a glimpse of the riders, but the trees on the intervening islands cut off the view. Struck by the sun and the deep of the tonic air, he glanced up and down the river along and over the green labyrinth of islands to the corn-covered ridges against the eastern sky-line. "A fine morning for a ride—but I'll fine 'em." The approaching hoof-beats were twice silenced on the sands of the intervening islands, and when they sounded again Grant looked and saw the riders entering his span of the bridge.

"How now? By Billy—yes sir, sure's taxes, a woman. So! They see me now—that's right, whoa, but you're too late."

Bobbie went on sniffling, and wondered what his lively couple would say, first, to a $5 fine each, and second, to a half-hour's wait while he got the torn-up planks replaced. The riders reined in upon discovering the commissioner and drew their mounts side by side, on still nearer view they appeared to be talking in low voices, and the interested Bobbie could make out that the man seemed to be reassuring his companion, having reached and taken possession of her whip hand. This tender conjunction was dissolved, however, when close approach to the busy commissioner, who opened his eyes in surprise as he recognized the young fellow. He had been in his mind that same minute. "Here he is now," said he to himself; "think about the grasshopper and you hear the rustle of his wings. But I say if Dave and his gal's in a hurry, I can fix up that little split in the party right here this morning." He began to whistle and beat over his work.

"Why, hello Bob! What the dickens—have we got to wait?"

"Unless you can jump it, Dave," replied Bobbie, with the convincing satisfaction of the cool observer in the presence of the hurried. He looked from young Dave Morton to the girl at his side. "One of the Bracken girls, ain't you?" said he. The girl blushed and hesitated. "Thought so," said the commissioner.

"Can't we get across, Mr. Grant?" asked the girl, frowning her courage.

Bobbie looked up at her, down again to the gap in the bridge floor. He said nothing and began to whistle. In ordinary circumstances Bob's answer to a question was as quick and emphatic as the answer of gun-cap to trigger. The young couple noted this with a forbidding of trouble; such deliberation on Bobbie's part meant scheming of some sort. The horses clamped their bits and stamped on the bridge impatiently.

"In a hurry to get to town?" asked Bobbie, still jerking his long legs whistling in the direction of Platteville. Dave was young, and thought best to answer round so inclusive a question. "Oh, we're just taking a morning ride and want to get it over before the sun comes up hot. Can't you lay 'em temporarily and let us over?" Inquired the young gallant with ill-reigned calmness.

Bob's answer was another question on quite a different subject. Back of his participation in the dialogue his simple mind had been busy with the affairs of the great political party of which he was a devoted member. The young man before him was the leader of a small but dangerous conservative faction in Vista county. This faction had made trouble in the past and were supposed to be concealing trouble for the county convention nearly at hand. If Vista's delegation to the state convention, to be chosen by this county convention, should be divided, it would mean danger to every plan and principle and candidate of the People's party all the way up the line in the county, state and nation.

"Dave," said Bobbie, cautiously, but looking squarely up in Dave's eyes, "what are you over-the-ivory fellows going to do at the convention next month? Slavin of your township was in Saturday, and he talked as rambunctious as ever. Now I—"

"Christopher Moses, Bob! I've got no time to talk politics this morning. Can't you see?"

"Dave, you're wasting your own valuable time. Now just let me manage this confab and you and your lady'll be on the move in a minute, provided—"

"Oh, hush your 'provident,' Bob, let us over."

The lanky Populist raised his eyebrows and set another nail for driving. The girl turned in the direction they had come. The sun was lifting above the ridges, and through a gap where the road began its long winding descent to the river a third rider came into view. The girl uttered a little suppressed scream. "Father!" she gasped.

"Keep cool, my children, he's two miles away yet. Keep 'em and trust to Bobbie Grant. Now, look here, you Dave, you're too damned good a fellow to be left kicking against the counsel of the party. If you weren't such a bright, popular chap, you couldn't do us any harm. But as she stands, any boy, if I help you out now, you've got to help me later, do you see?" Dave was desperate. "Well, anything, only hurry."

"There's no hurry. But what I was getting at was just this: you carry the votes of three townships in your overalls 'pocket.' Bob began laying the boards loose over the repair gap.

"Now, I want you, fellows to behave when you come down here to this convention. 'Tain't for my good—you can see that—it's for the party's good."

"Well, choke that stupid speech, Bob! I can handle the far end of the end of the bridge. He'll be up with us in half a giffy. Hurry up and get the last board laid!"

"Now, Dave, don't get excited, and remember, this old bridge—built by our old man, the first mayor of the county—is a mile long. And there's just one other little matter. I'll have to fine you two for breaking the regulation about walking your horses over the bridge."

Dave protested.

"I've got to do it, my boy. When Bobbie Grant is road commissioner the regulations have got to be enforced, do you see? But you can pay the fine—$10—when you get back from the honeymoon—you'll need what you've got about you, Dave, for the preacher, I guess. Do you see?"

Young Morton groaned. "Fraid you've killed that part of it, Bob, said he, sullenly. "The old man's got us now, for certain."

"Never you worry about the old man. This bridge ain't fixed yet. I'll let him wait exactly one hour by the sun, and if you two ain't hitched by that time, you don't deserve to be, that's all."

"Oh, you beautiful man!" cried the young woman, bending down upon Bob's rough face. "And if you will just convince him that it's all right, and that Dave is just the man for me, you'd be simply an angel."

Bobbie cast his eye deliberately along the bridge, and adjusted the last board. "Clippit now!" he commanded, stepping to one side.

The riders were past him before the words were out of his mouth, and the same instant a white plume orchid, tossed from somewhere, lodged in the folds of his crossed vixen. In Nebraska the wild orchid is the bride's flower in its season. He took up the blossom and placed the stem between his lips, beginning to whistle "Cotton-Eyed Joe," and watched the runaways until they left the bridge at the townwards end and disappeared around the bend, behind a grove of cottonwoods. Then he heard hoof-beats behind him. Without looking in that direction, he stooped and began taking up the loose boards, at the same time changing his tune to "Hoid the Fort for I Am Coming."

Ill-Tempered Baboons.

In the course of his travels, the celebrated Gulliver came across a country where baboons were the real people, the nearest representatives of humankind being a most degraded and hostile race called Yahoos.

Then, Swift, who wrote the story, got his data from what he had learned of the baboons of South Africa, which are great apes remarkably humanlike. They travel in bands of two scores or more usually at night, and in the morning, when they are very noisy in case of danger is "Yah-hoo, yah-hoo!"

Perhaps, Some Day.

Patriotism and local pride may sometimes be stronger than geographical knowledge, and perhaps it is as well they should be. Such is the view, in any case, of the teacher of the UB grade in one of the schools of Indiana, in which a young miss was required to name the capital of the United States. "Indianapolis," she replied. And the capital of Indiana came next. That was easy, too, "Jeffersonville." She had "Washington" in her mind, all right, however, for another question elicited the information that he is the President of the United States. "Well," she said, "he still keeps his picture on our stamps."

Small Coinage Short.

The Japanese are short of small coinage and are beginning to feel the sting thereof quite as much as people in the United States. Their government has decided to issue small paper notes of 50, 20 and 10 sen denominations. The Japanese sen is equal to one-half cent of our currency.

There is a movement on foot to start an educational propaganda with in the German empire, to inform the people of those countries of the real demands that the other nations of the world make. One writer suggests that the best thing to be done in that direction is to print two or three million copies of the Ten Commandments in the German language and distribute them over the whole of the country by airplanes.—Omaha World-Herald.

Members of the military and naval forces of the United States for whose benefit the insurance was established are availing themselves of it. ### Foggy in Camp.

It was an unusually foggy morning at Camp Grant. The soldiers were in line as usual ready for drilling, but the sergeant noticed that somebody was out of place, he being quite a distance away. He called to him to get in line, but no answer was received, nor did the object stir. After calling and motioning to him several times he walked up to him, when to his dismay he found he had been talking to a post.

The N. B. H. Whist Club concluded its season's delightful meetings with an auto trip to Camp Devereaux, where they were conveyed by auto from Mr. Donald's garage. They left at about 11:30 for a pleasant trip with no startling vicissitudes except that a clutch didn't work good. It is said that the club pool, Mrs. Foster Gardner, has written a poem of the trip which is greatly appreciated. It will be published later. Mr. Allen Clark of East Weymouth was lost to the club and they say, "he sure is a sandy man." They had a splendid time. The ride home through the historic town en route was interesting and enjoyed by all. The wind-up was as enjoyable as any feature, the club replying to the Villa Napoli for dinner, and after dinner speaking.

Miss Josephine Reynolds will make her home with her sister, Mrs. Walter Cummings, this season.

The management of the Apollo Theatre gave the use of that building on Sunday for the W. B. S. drive just completed. A full amount of the drive to date furnished by the committee will be found in another column. It is understood that it was successful.

At the moving picture show given on Sunday during which Mr. C. V. Nelson of Hull and Mr. Burdell of Brockton gave addresses and an orchestra composed of Harry Gardner, Francis Eleanor Almon, piano; Anna Hyatt, organ; Romeo Hanlon, violin; rendered patriotic music in very acceptable manner, new enthusiasm for the work was gained. The management of the theatre has gone on as being with Uncle Sam in every way possible.

Richard's Burdles, with its new organ, is attracting much attention. The cars to Green Hill are running and much appreciation is felt.

Sunday was a lively day at the beach and the fact that about 50 pretty girls with their capes were out getting W. B. S. plaques, adds to the gaiety. It is said that a great many stamps were pledged and a great many sold outright on that day.

The Nantasket Beach Whist Club, fearing that there might be some misapprehension as to amount contributed to the work of the Special Aid, state that the $2000 recently acknowledged by Mrs. J. B. Campbell, chairman, in a card of thanks, was money previously contributed to the Social Centre for a moving picture machine. By joint agreement between the Social Centre and the club it was decided to use this money for work as the demand was urgent. In view of the great need for funds for war work it was not deemed advisable to return the money or a moving picture machine. The action of both societies is commended.

The whist party held at Mrs. Flood's under the auspices of the club for war work of the Special Aid Society, netted over $250.00, which has been added to the treasury. In addition, and acknowledged by the chairman.

It is a source of great gratification to all that the different clubs and societies at Nantasket work together in war work.

Beginning July 1st, the S. A. S. A. P. will hold its meetings from 10 a. m. till 4 p. m. at the Danion School for sewing, knitting and surgical dressings. It will greatly assist Mrs. Campbell if those intending to work on surgical dressings will notify her to that effect that all may be accommodated.

Special mention should be made of the Hingham High School class prophesy which will be given by Harrison Gardner this evening at the reception at Hingham. Harrison has had only one week in which to prepare this and should be congratulated for his effort. He will make a 100 part minute man, and emergency men are scarce. It is a matter of congratulation to the town people in general as well as to the relatives and friends of this young man that John McKenzie of North Cohasset of 101st regiment in France has received the Medal of Honor in recognition of his valor and meritorious service. It is of interest also to friends of Chaplain Lyman Hollins here in town that he has also been at cross centered upon him.

Chaplain Hollins, who was pastor of Michael's Episcopal Church, Marlborough, was a warm friend of Rev. H. K. Bartow, and as Chaplain of the former was lieutenant was supplied with the Chaplain's equipment under direction of Rev. It is a very pretty sight to see so many handsome U. S. flags fluttering from the breezes from various flag poles in town, and full of patriotic significance which must impress itself upon the minds even of the young people, perhaps upon them the most because they are at a more impressive age.

The O. C. A. gave the beautiful flag which denotes the flagpole at the G. A. R. Hall as it is seen through a gap in the dense foliage of the trees, a lovely sight of order amid the green and concentrated by the gray of the massive stone tower of the Episcopal Church close by. The flag seems a connecting link between the veterans of the past few of whom none remains with us and the boys in service today who are again fighting and holding the house and integrity of our nation and its ideals for which noble flag is the symbol and for which the dear old A. R. veterans fought.

Mr. George Jason, Jr. was called upon last week to perform a stunt which equals or even exceeds many of which we read today. Mr. Jason being unable to find men who would offer him 100-foot flag-pole to release his magnificent flag secured Mr. Jason's services

He was hoisted to the yard arms by three men and then descended the pole the way to the flag. The attempt to release the flag alone could not be so complicated and the next day there was again secured the flag as a victory. Mr. Jason's trophy and courage in trying to do this about calls forth the most enthusiastic admiration.

One of the most interesting events at this season is the annual Park Dance at 4:30 p. m. given by the people of the Osgood High School and younger groups who have been taught graciously through the winter months by Miss Margaret Pratt.

The dance party this year so far was given at the Tennis Court at the Baller estate on last Saturday afternoon at 4:30 p. m. and being situated among the most delightful surroundings imaginable. Many splendidly robust lolly trots dotted the woodland through which just enough of sunlight and shadow played to make it not dream to sit and look at it with when the most at one side an impromptu arbor had been erected decked with vines where the musicians, including the piano and violinists played. The dances of whom there were twenty or more among the high school pupils entered the arbor from a gateway at one side and entered the dance with great enthusiasm.

Miss Bolles served delicious refreshments to the dancers on the piazza of her summer home. It seems as if a vote of thanks and a very appreciative one, should be given to Miss Bolles by the parents of the children who danced for making it possible for them to attain such a degree of physical culture and grace as these dances develop. The guests are to be devoted to the Social Service League of Cohasset. A grand-sized audience of some 200 persons surrounded residents clapped loudly their appreciation as each dance was completed.

WHAT CAN WE DO?

The following article is quoted from the Red Cross organ, "A. R. C. Rays," published at Denver. Among the things we can do is to follow its advice.

"The following statement is authorized by the War Department: 'Recent reports from commanding generals of certain army divisions indicate that one of the fruitful causes of soldiers deserting themselves without leave is the discouraging letter from home. Such letters frequently give alarming and exaggerated reports of conditions surrounding the soldier's family, that some member is desperately ill, that all are starving or that they are being in some way harassed. In instances such letters have so preyed upon the minds of soldiers that they have absented themselves without leave to go home, only to find that conditions had been grossly exaggerated. 'Meanwhile the soldier has been absent without leave—a serious military offense. His problem then became one of facing the penalty or getting deeper in trouble by deserting. Sometimes a man's pride or fear has led him to desert. 'Every soldier wants to receive letters from home. They should be frequent, cheerful, hopeful and appreciative of the sacrifice that he is making for his country. They should be full of family incidents and cheerful home gossip. They should protect him from the trifling alarms and the small annoyances of everyday life. They should encourage him by giving full confidence that his family and his friends stand behind him in the great enterprise he has undertaken. 'A division inspector submitted the following in this connection: 'While stationed at Columbus Barracks, Ohio, last year, I was a member of a general court-martial that tried approximately 100 enlisted men for desertion from national guard regiments stationed on the border. I believe I am safe in saying that at least 90 per cent of them gave as their reason for desertion the fact that they had received letters from home to the effect that a wife, sister or mother was either dying, very ill, or in destitute circumstances, and begged the man to come home at once. Many of the men admitted that when they arrived home they found that the writer of the letter had exaggerated conditions. 'Many young soldiers, fresh from home, suffer from homesickness, no matter how army officers may try to make their surroundings pleasant and comfortable and provide proper amusements. Extraordinary measures have been taken by the War Department during the past year to keep the young soldier actively engaged while in camp with sports, amusements and comforts that a wholesome psychology might be sustained. Still, a type of soldier will yearn for home and fall into a brooding mood. It is obvious how harmful to him and to the service a discontented letter from home might be."

And Now It's Coats and Breeches.

So fast our women are putting themselves into service suits—service garments that we have already come to the place where this new order of things in apparel is taken as a matter of course. Arrives a new outfit over the animated horizon of original things, and we discuss its points of advantage over other outfits—its trimness, its strength, its fitness for the purpose it is to fulfill or the emergency it meets—we have ceased to speak of it as a new departure; the novelty has passed and the service suit is established. There is nothing simple and easily disposed of about the designing of these practical new clothes. They must be convenient, comfortable, durable and shapely. Specialists are giving them weeks of thought. Their last efforts proclaim that they have done wonders, for now we have the new coat and breeches suit as trim as a riding habit and as efficient as a soldier's uniform. In fact, the breeches are cut on lines much like those of the boys in khaki—except that they are cut in one with the leggings which extend to the ankles and lace up. The coat is cut on good lines, has a long skirt part, sets easily and is provided with a belt and four capacious and practical patch pockets. Finally, a hat to match has a collapsible crown—and brim wide enough to shade the eyes. Can you imagine anything more comfortable and pleasing than this outfit? Two views of it are given in the picture, a photograph and a small drawing. On the farm, in the saddle, camping out, going fishing, driving a car, isn't it just the ideal garb for service? The blouse under the coat may be light or heavy as occasion requires. At the left of the picture there is a sketch of a pair of overalls for garden or house work—or other service. But they deserve more than mere mention and will be shown—gathered with another service suit—in a photograph at some other time.

Suits of Georgette.
 The word "suit" recalls to many minds the tailcoats of serge, turtleneck, and the various heavy silks in dress and sport weaves. Any material so sheer as georgette does not seem feasible for such a garment, but a stunning example on tailored lines created of the heaviest quality of cream georgette allows this fabric to enter the lists as a fitting medium for suits, says the Dry Goods Economist. The finger-tip length coat is elaborately embroidered in navy silk. A few broad plaits give the necessary fullness in a skirt of this material, and they nicely correspond to those in the back of the coat that is belted at the normal waistline.

Footings is Popular.
 Footings fits in so well with the very simple fashions of the season that it is no wonder this dainty trimming is in high favor this year. A lovely little frock recently over from Paris is made of fine white silk net in a design of artful simplicity. The gathered skirt is tucked in two-inch rucks set six inches apart and on the edge of each tuck is a two-inch band of black net footings. The sleeves (just to the elbow) are edged with black footings and so is a deep, demure fichu drawn down over the shoulders into the sash. And the sash? It is of ciel blue faille silk, with four bands of footings on each end.

Doan's Kidney Pills Effected Wonderful Recovery After Other Medicines Had Failed.

"I don't believe I would be able to give this testimony if it weren't for Doan's Kidney Pills," says Mrs. Julia A. Thomas, 1125-A Missouri Ave., East St. Louis, Ill. "I was in a serious condition with kidney trouble, my feet and ankles were terribly swollen and the kidney secretions caused agony in passage. I had terrible rheumatic pains and often got so dizzy I dared not walk for fear of falling. I felt as if I would go frantic. I grew weak as a baby and often had to grasp something to keep from falling. My nerves were all unstrung and the least noise startled me. Nothing benefited me and I was discouraged. A neighbor happened to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and I began using them. The swellings and pains were soon eased up and it was but a short time before my kidneys were in good shape again. They have never bothered me since nor have I had any backache or other kidney trouble. I have gained 55 pounds since I was cured and can do all my own work without suffering."

CONCEALED AMERICAN BATTERY IN PICARDY

TREAT WOUNDED IN FACE OF FOE

Red Cross Workers Refuse to Retreat While There Is Work To Do.

AMERICANS IN HERO ROLE

Incident of Early Spring Offensive of Huns on the Somme That Should Make Americans Proud of Their Men.

Washington.—The story of the part American and Americans played in aiding the British and the French during the early spring offensive of the Germans on the Somme can never be adequately told. The whole picture is too big to paint on one canvas. It is only by describing the work of individuals and particular groups of workers that some idea of the American effort and its effectiveness in this historic battle can be brought home to the people back home—and then only in a small way.

While it is perhaps only a very small incident in the history of that great affair, the story of how a small band of American Red Cross workers "carried on" at one of the evacuation hospitals back of the British front should make Americans proud. When all but a few of the hospital staff had left with the two hundred or more patients and the Germans were advancing only a few miles away, four American army surgeons, assigned to the American Red Cross work at this particular hospital, declared their intention of "sticking till the froze over." And six Red Cross ambulance and truck drivers, as well as several American Red Cross nurses and aides "stuck" with them.

The Americans made their decision not because of sheer bravado, but because the hospital had the opportunity of serving a few wounded soldiers from day to day—and could save their lives. And at this writing these Americans are still there, giving much-needed medical attention to French and British soldiers who are brought back to this hospital because it is the nearest one back of that point of the line.

Stay on the Job. The big guns of the British and French have been planted in the rear of it—and then moved further back. The Boche airplanes come over at night. The little group of Americans have seen the troops, guns and transports go by in streams to points in the rear, but as long as the wounded are brought there, these Americans will stay.

A few hours after American Red Cross headquarters in Paris learned of the big German offensive, it dispatched eight trucks and motor cars to this hospital to aid in the evacuation of the patients. Night and day the Red Cross drivers worked bringing the wounded from the hospital to Paris.

When this had been accomplished

RAISE GARDEN STUFF

Red Cross Establishes Truck Farms in France.

Supplies Recreation and Employment to Convalescents and Increases Food Supply.

Paris.—With a view to supplying recreation and employment to convalescents and incidentally increasing the food supply, the American Red Cross has established ten truck farms in connection with base hospitals in France where, under trained supervision, the convalescents are raising vegetables for consumption in the hospitals. The number of farms will be increased during the year, the American Red Cross supplying seed, implements and trained supervision, as well as money for operating expenses.

At one place, where there are three base hospitals together, a farm of 100 acres is now under cultivation, though the Red Cross cars went out into the surrounding country to pick up the wounded, who were attempting to walk to a hospital, and to aid the refugees straggling along the road. Besides transporting these two hundred or more wounded men to places of safety, the Red Cross cars added 130 refugees to the railroads in three days.

But their work had only begun. Despite the evacuation of the hospital and the consequent order for more of the staff to accompany the patients to points of safety, the wounded kept coming in. Ninety per cent of them were serious cases. Practically all demanded immediate operations. Not simple operations, but major ones, where a steady nerve, delicate touch and sure hand were necessary to give the wounded the best chance for life.

Work Night and Day.

Night and day the American surgeons worked. There were a few nurses to assist, but all were tired—completely frayed, mentally and physically. Every one needed rest. But there were the men coming in every few hours, their bodies pitifully torn, and suffering untold agonies. So no one thought of stopping, and even when one did get a few hours off duty there were the big guns only a few hundred feet from the hospital. They belched and roared all night.

Of course, some of the cases were hopeless and no amount of surgical skill or medical attention could save them. Here again the American Red Cross men came in for more work. They had to dig the graves and act as pallbearers.

One night was especially hard. The doctors were kept busy in the operating room until three o'clock in the morning. The nurses had to have a bit of rest. One nurse only was available. So again the Red Cross drivers were called upon. One became an aid to the operating surgeon, remaining in service until the last wounded man was rolled finally into his bed.

BROTHERS PREFER DEATH TO EXPOSURE OF BODIES

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Rather than expose their bodies to a physical examination William and Christian Hong, brothers, preferred death. They were the first Americans to United States Commissioner Knox here when they were charged with evading the draft by not presenting themselves for physical examination.

Order Pickled Cabbage.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The local food administration has decided to make sauerkraut less German by striking out the hyphen. It has been officially placed on the list of patriotic foods and it is believed more would be eaten if given the name "pickled cabbage."

The average farm is about eight acres. Two of the larger farms are equipped with tractors. For the most part, however, the work is hand labor, that the convalescents may profit to the utmost from the outdoor exercise.

Owing to climate conditions gardening in an all-the-year-round occupation in France and is carried on in a most intensive way, with every inch of ground under cultivation and rows between rows, as, for instance, cabbages between rows of potatoes. When plants are removed in the morning the ground is worked over during the day and by night the soil is again at work on freshly sown seed. No charge is made the hospitals for the produce, but accounts are kept and it is expected to show that the farms more than pay for their operating expenses.

Through these gardens many French Polts have their first taste of the great American delicacy, "corn on the cob." A greater use of a variety of vegetables is made in France than in America and the Red Cross is supplying seed for beans, beets, cabbage, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, carrots, celery, Swiss chard, chloery, corn, cu-

SALT WOODEN SHIPS

Method Used to Lengthen Life of Vessels.

Turns Seepage into Brine, Which Acts as a Preservative of the Wood.

Seattle, Wash.—C. O. Morrow, president of the Elliotts Shipbuilding company, suffered something of a shock the other morning, but at that it was nothing to the shock suffered by several prominent citizens who were taking a stroll through the company's big wooden shipbuilding plant.

The citizens were shocked when they discovered that 20 tons of rock salt is used in building each of the big wooden ships now under construction in Seattle. Mr. Morrow was shocked because his callers didn't know that rock salt is a shipbuilding material. Everybody on the water front knows that, but it seems that there are a lot of prominent business men who didn't. There is now a suspicion that only a very few residents east of Railroad avenue know that a wooden ship has to be salted.

In showing the prominent citizens about his plant Mr. Morrow came to the building in which he stores this rock salt. A railroad car was unloading another shipment.

"This is where we keep the salt for the ships," said Morrow.

"Haw, haw!" said one caller, who is something of a humorist. "I suppose you're afraid the ships will get too fresh?"

"That's the exact truth," said Mr. Morrow.

But the citizens wouldn't believe him until they had examined the salt. Some of them tasted it. The storehouses contained 120 tons.

Mr. Morrow explained that the salt is poured between the frames of a wooden ship above the water line and is tamped down solid. Then if any water seeps into the spaces between the frames it is turned to brine and does not damage the wood. Instead, it acts as a preservative.

FIRST CONSOLATION

The wounded soldier's first consolation is a cigarette to soothe his nerves, and his comrades are sympathetically eager to bring him the comfort.

"Flat-Foot" Walks 113 Miles. Elkins, W. Va.—Tom Blinn, twenty-two, a miner, says "nine" is lucky for him. Eight times he tried to get into the United States military service but failed because of flat feet. The ninth time carried him over. He is now a member of the naval reserves. To prove that he was able to hike with the best of them, Blinn walked 113 miles.

Prevents Sugar Famine.

Pullman, Wash.—Boys and girls belonging to Washington's juvenile clubs are to be enlisted in the patriotic movement to raise sugar beets this year, to be stored and set out in the spring of 1919, to produce beet seed for the spring of 1920. It is expected in this way that the threatened sugar famine may be averted.

Wichita, Kan.—Is a watch wearing apparel? That is the question that John Lewis, a Wichita furniture dealer, has asked the courts to decide. Lewis has his business in his wife's name. He has been sued several times lately.

IF A WATCH IS WEARING APPAREL, THEN HE WINS

In one suit his watch and all the money that he happened to have with him, 50 cents, were attached. Lewis, through his attorney, claims that the watch is "wearing apparel," "adornment," and cites the Century dictionary for proof.

A. J. Landry, optometrist. Phone 198-M Cohasset.

Sunday morning the community was saddened by the news of the sudden critical illness that came upon Dr. C. W. Bartlett, our beloved physician.

Never was a more beautiful day than June 17, which fact was fully appreciated by the Cong. of the D. A. R. who had charge of the exercises at the staff dedication and flag raising on the training ground in Marshfield.

The speaking was held in the historic old church opposite Congressman Walsh being the chief speaker.

Miss Louise Wardworth, Regent of Tea Rock Chapter, presided. Mrs. Elison, regent of the Mass. D. A. R. gave an interesting address. Mrs. Cary read the prize essay on the History of our Flag, written by Hazel Shaw of the Senior class in the High School. Miss Shaw also won the prize given by the D. A. R. last year, that essay being on The Early History of Marshfield. Miss Sinnott sang a solo. Wilfrid Bonney and Eulalia Pinkham gave a very pleasing duet, and other children from the schools sang a chorus.

Jack Bencord, lugger at Camp Devens, gave the huge calls. A number of Grand Army Veterans and a delegation of the Duxbury Sons of Veterans took part in the exercises. There was a large and appreciative audience.

After the exercises in the church, the company assembled on the common about the flag staff. Rep. Haynes made a brief but eloquent speech. The Marshfield Hills orchestra played "Keep the Home Fires Burning." Then followed the raising of the flag, and the salute given by the Sons of Veterans.

It was an occasion long to be remembered and the beautiful flag flying from the tall staff will always bring a thrill of patriotism to every passer by.

A party of fourteen motored from Worcester, leaving there at three o'clock Monday morning, and arrived at Brant Rock about seven. They were met by Captain Blackman and soon were on board the yacht "Princess" and set sail for the fishing grounds. They had a most enjoyable outing and landed a good fare of fish. A prize of $14 was given to the one catching the largest fish. There was also a prize for the one catching the smallest fish.

Continue Boston Engagement at Ye Wilbur

Successful has been the engagement of Mr. Rock and Miss White at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, that finding themselves unable to arrange for an extension of their stay at that house they have decided to move to Ye Wilbur Theatre, Boston, where they will meet the great popular demand for a continuance of their unique and thoroughly delightful entertainment.

William Rock and Frances White, in their delightful and intimate revue of music, dance and chatter are duplicating the big success that made them prime favorites with New York audiences, during their two years of service with the Zeigfeld Midnight Frolic, at the Coconut Grove, that gathering place of elite New Yorkers, atop the New Amsterdam Theatre.

This remarkable entertainment which is described on the play bills as "the most unique entertainment of the season" but very faintly gives any impression of its extraordinary cleverness, and the broad versatility and very interesting artistry of William Rock and Frances White, who stand responsible for this delightful confection of originality.

William Rock, a fine character comedian, an unusually sincere worker and an excellent dancer nightly adds new laurels, in his clever and delightful performance.

JOURNEYS

A JOURNEY THAT WAS UNNECESSARY

"Hello! Mr. Jameson, this is Kennedy of Bangor Maine. Just arrived Nin ew York this morning and I want to close that deal with you today, if possible. When will it be convenient for me to see you?"

"Well, Mr. Kennedy, I didn't expect you and I am going to leave town in about half an hour to be absent two or three days. Why can't we settle it right now over the telephone?"

"All right, Mr. Jameson, that is perfectly agreeable to me."

The deal was closed and Mr. Kennedy returned to Bangor without seeing Mr. Jameson at all. Of course he could have accomplished this just as well by telephoning from Bangor and thus saved three days' time and about $40 traveling expenses. And he hadn't even used the telephone to ascertain if Mr. Jameson would be in town.

A JOURNEY THAT WAS AVOIDED

"Hello! Is that you Mary? I'm so glad to hear your voice. Have just received your letter about John's illness. How is he today? I was so much to be with him and will come if necessary, but Marion is ill, too, and it's hard for me to leave home."

"Mother, I'm glad you telephoned me before leaving home, for the doctor has just been here and says that John is very much better so it really is not necessary for you to come."

"That is indeed good news. I'm glad that I telephoned you before starting."
